

How do I use connections?

Contributed by Lexis Nexis
Thursday, 15 November 2007

You can connect with other members of the site and you can see other peoples' connections by looking in their profile. To make a connection

To connect to someone you can do this from viewing their profile. To view their profile you can either Click on "Find Users" in "My Menu" on the left, click on their name if you see at the top of an opinion, click on their name if it appears in any of the lists on the right or if you see their name in any forum postings. To view someone's profile or if "My Menu" has not appeared you need to log in or, if you have not yet registered, register and login. Registration is free.

Once you can see someone's profile you can request a connection by clicking the connections button and choosing "request a connection". Any email will be sent to that person for them to approve the request.

You can manage your connections at any time by viewing your profile. The quickest way to view your profile is to click your picture under login or click "My Profile" at the very top of the page, or click "My Details" under "My Men" on the left.